Determining resolution Determining the resolution of a print is very simple and requires no math. Take the measurement of an image from one edge to the opposite edge and divide it by the width of the paper that the print will be on. Most people use 4×6-inch or 8×10-inch sheets of paper. This will give you a range of 300 to 600 dpi. Anything in between those numbers will work, but you'll need to print a test image to get the dpi you need.

Mutations in the rtR624 gene encoding the 5'-untranslated region of the Crimean-Congo hemorrhagic fever virus genome. The 5'-untranslated region (5'-UTR) of the RNA genomes of the Crimean-Congo hemorrhagic fever virus (CCHFV) and the Nairobi sheep disease virus (NSDV), which also belong to the Nairovirus genus of the Bunyaviridae family, was analyzed. In the CCHFV genome, a 261-nucleotide sequence, atypically located at the 5'-UTR, was found to be the target for the nucleotide substitutions that occurred during the evolution of CCHFV. The mutations were dispersed within the 5'-UTR sequence and encoded two separate changes in the VP38 protein: (i) two substitutions in the N-terminal region of VP38, resulting in an alteration in VP38 cleavage and processing sites, and (ii) a substitution in the consensus sequence of the binding site for the viral polymerase. These nucleotide substitutions can therefore be involved in the decrease in viral replication and the loss of virulence. In the 5'-UTR of NSDV, only one mutation was detected in the 88-nucleotide sequence. Mutations in the 5'-UTR of the NSDV genome appear to be a rare event, compared with those occurring in the 5'-UTR of the CCHFV genome. The substitution in the 5'-UTR of the CCHFV genome seems to be a common event, as it was also found in other strains of CCHFV isolated in different countries in different periods of time, confirming the evolutionary importance of this region in CCHFV. Sophia Milner Unravels Her Growing Emotional Affair With Nick Jonas Sophia Milner has revealed that she feels a strong "emotional attachment" to her guy boy Nick Jonas. During a chat with Wendy Williams, the 18-year-old actress said that her songstress crush had helped her cope with "this great loss." "I think I realized that I had a very deep connection with him," she said. "So I've been in a really good place." Although the former Disney princess admitted that she's been trying not to dwell too much on the death of her

What's New in the?

Overnight heejays have been uncharacteristically quiet, making it seem as though all the busiest people on the planet are going home or putting their feet up. But one way or another, they've finished preparing for the night shift and the beginning of the new day. The sun is setting, and for the next few hours, we're going to be consuming all the coffee we can handle. Electric Jukebox To be honest, we don't really need to be reminded. But the AMC Theater in downtown St. Paul has added more variety to the entertainment experience than any other mall we've been to before. Its four movie-theater screens are painted in bright, eye-catching colors, and its programming is focused on telling a story. Maybe you want to watch the magical realism film Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon. Or the adventure film Pirates of the Caribbean. Or the drama The Help. The films are projected onto a screen in the center of the theater, while sound comes from speakers on the walls. Once the movie is complete, it's time for part two. Here's how it works: Once the movie's over, customers can ask for a seat next to the speakers, and in their seat, some of them start jamming out. Using smartphone apps, the movie screen then becomes a dance floor for the audience. Like I said, this part of the AMC Theater is on the cutting edge of movie theater sound. Mood Lighting At the corner of 10th and Kellogg avenues in downtown, large planters lead to a grassy yard that holds trees and a flagpole. Painted the night before, the trees are decorated with lanterns. At 8 p.m., they started lighting up, and the whole scene looked like a magical scene from the film The Nightmare Before Christmas. You can tell it's Halloween because it's the season of pumpkins, ghosts and witches. In the past, St. Paul has celebrated Halloween with live music. But this year the music came via the sounds of wind chimes and a DJ. Safety First A staple of any Halloween celebration is a parade and floats. This year the safety-conscious crowd would not be disappointed. First up was the College of St. Scholastica in Duluth, Minn. The College of St. Scholastica is one of the
